IMMUNITY IS AN ELUSIVE REALITY...

When you come across an article like Dr. Alexander Myasnikov's that almost all advertised medicines are useless, you need to write an explanation, because the article shows only part of the true processes for which these drugs "do not work". The explanation is made not only for those who need treatment, but also to help all those who have been trying for many years to convey this information to the world's population, who cannot get out of the relay race along a predetermined route: malaise-pharmacy-hospital-cemetery.

The author of the article begins with the question: "how to strengthen the immune system?"»

And immediately answers it: "No Way."

Despite the fact that Alexander Myasnikov is a former chief physician of the Kremlin hospital, currently the head of the clinic where the political and business elite of Russia are being treated, these words can be called seditious in relation to the views of pathologists and their methods of "fitting" a living person to the condition of a mortuary patient.

We will not dwell on all the real successes achieved by Dr. A. Myasnikov in the field of medicine. We will note only that his statements more than once shocked those who for decades believed in what doctors and media advertising said. Now Myasnikov took a swing at the most sacred thing – the pills that everyone used to stuff themselves with according to prescriptions and doctors' advice, and in the last decade, independently, thanks to wide advertising companies, he also encroached on an advertising campaign to "restore immunity" by taking immunomodulators ...

Myasnikov claims that almost all advertised medical drugs are useless, and often harmful to people, calling this advertising a business and using human weaknesses for this - the desire to live long, be healthy, while doing nothing, but only using drugs. A broad advertising campaign does not confirm the healing properties of drugs, but only shows the scale of the money invested, which must be returned with a profit. And a gullible person will bring this profit to medicine dealers, although in reality there are no more than 200 types of medicines based on the nature of natural components that can help a person ease the course of his illness and start healing processes.

One of the most shocking statements (for everyone who has breakfast, lunch and dinner with pills) of Dr. Myasnikov was that "you can't raise the immune system with pills!!! A person either has immunity or does not have it."

And here he is absolutely right! I didn't explain just what processes it depends on. He went on to say that "if the immunodeficiency is congenital, these children often do not live to adulthood and die from infections. If acquired immunodeficiency then this is AIDS. Everything! There are practically no other diseases affecting the immune system."

About innate immunodeficiency, we should discuss in more detail, since each consequence has a well-defined cause of a completely physical nature:

- this is the unfavorable environmental situation in the area where the parents live before and during conception;
- this is the destructive factors of electromagnetic fields, and geopathic zones;
- this is the presence of narcotic substances in the blood of parents and many other things that should be shouted everywhere, especially for those who deal with the health of a trusting population;
- the presence of staphylococcal infection in maternity hospitals and early vaccination also cause a very strong decrease in the immunity of newborns.

"Therefore, there is nothing to increase," Dr. Myasnikov writes further, "and widely advertised immunomodulators are just a useless waste of money. Even people with AIDS don't get these drugs. According to European and American standards, treatment for AIDS is aimed at fighting the virus (or other pathogen)."

As a rule, all AIDS patients die from opportunistic conditions, which are a group of diseases of various etiologies that occur in AIDS due to severe immunosuppression. For example:

1. Malignant neoplasm:

- 1) Kaposi's sarcoma;
- 2) lymphoma of the brain.

2. Invasions:

- 1) pneumocystic pneumonia;
- 2) toxoplasmosis (with damage to the respiratory and central nervous system);
- 3) cryptosporidiosis (intestinal form with prolonged diarrhea);
- 4) strongyloidosis (pneumonia, lesions of the nervous system, disseminated processes).

3. Mycoses:

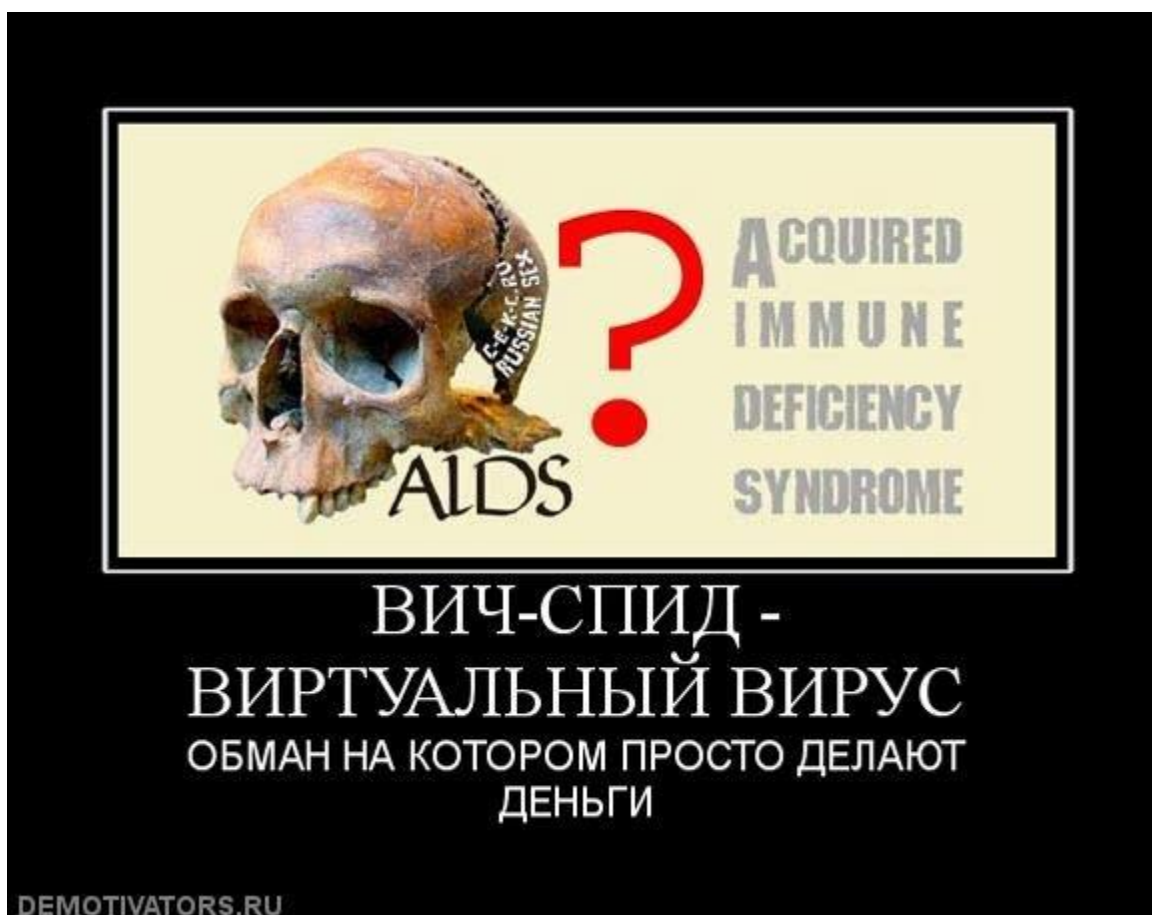

- 1) candidiasis (usually of the esophagus and mouth);
- 2) cryptococcosis (lung damage, CNS, disseminated process).

4. Bacterial infection:

- 1) Legionella pneumonia;
- 2) atypical mycobacteriosis (dissemination of infection);
- 3) salmonellosis (enteritis, sepsis).

5. Viral infection:

- 1) cytomegalovirus infection (damage to the lungs, gastrointestinal tract and central nervous system);
- 2) progressive leukoencephalopathy;
- 3) herpetic infections.

The myth that AIDS is caused by the HIV virus is another Scam of medicine and pharmaceutical concerns. Many distinguished doctors and researchers have already written about this. Therefore, to assess the magnitude of the problem, let's turn to the causes of AIDS, clearly defined By N. V. Levashov in the work "Last appeal to humanity":

"...not knowing the laws of the ecological system, man's thoughtless activities significantly disturbed its balance, which has already led to the extinction of thousands of species of living organisms. This same ignorance has also led to the fact that AIDS and other previously unknown diseases have descended on humanity, from which there is no protection, which also threatens the existence of man.

What are the reasons for all this?!

1) The population density of the planet has significantly exceeded the optimal density for humans, as a species of wildlife included in the overall ecological system. Excessive density of the total psi-field negatively affects the people who create it. At the same time, the individual protective psi-field of each person is destroyed and weakened and, as an integral part of it at the level of the physical body, the body's immune system.

Excess density of the psi field $\Delta W+$ (see Fig. 3) suppresses the thymus, which controls the body's immune system.

Naturally, the maximum negative impact is in places where there is a large concentration of people — in cities, especially large ones. In parallel, the excessive density of the combined psi field depresses the hormonal systems of people. And especially strongly on the sexual function of men, which leads to early and mass male impotence. And, again, this is very common in large cities.

2) Active suppression of the human immune system through medications, which is especially active and already on a mass scale, the last hundred years. For several generations, people have been subjected to this drug attack. And this, in the end, led to the fact that children born now have a weak immune system, already fixed in the genes.

3) Negative impact on the body as a whole and the immune system in particular produces a negative impact of the human environment, caused by the activity of the same person. In the course of his "conquest" of nature, man poisoned the water, air and soil with poisons. Everything that could be spoiled, man, as a result of his "rational" activity, spoiled... These poisons began to enter the human body via food, water, and air. In addition, the man himself (voluntarily) destroyed and poisoned himself with poisons, taking drugs, alcohol, and nicotine.

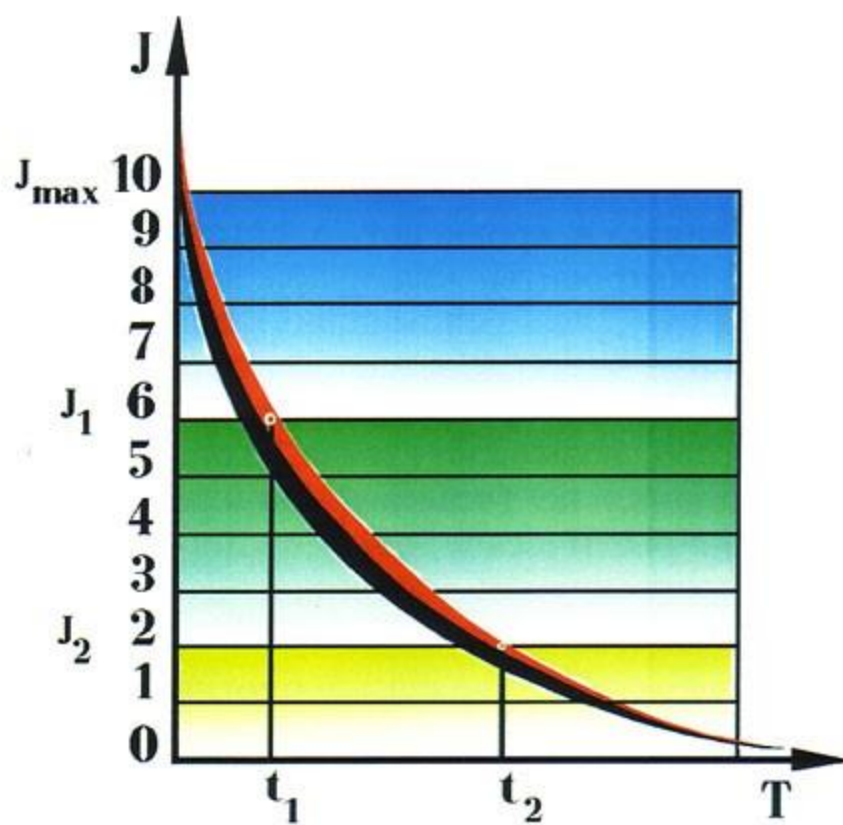

Together, all these factors have led to the fact that the level of immune activity has significantly decreased. In addition, the normal protective psi field of the human body negatively affects any infection and creates very unfavorable conditions for the development of most living organisms. The opportunity for active development of infection in the human body appears when the level of psi-protection of the body is reduced to an acceptable level for this type of infection. Only then does the infection begin to develop in the body, seizing a "foothold". . .

The symptoms of AIDS are mentioned in the monastic chronicles eight hundred years ago. Undoubtedly, it has been here before. It's just that the number of people who had this disease was very small. Only in units did the level of the protective psi field drop to a level where the AIDS virus could be introduced into the body.

(Explanation: N. Levashov at that time did not yet have data that the AIDS virus did not exist, and if a virus is considered any living cell of the body that has lost contact with the Brain and received a reverse albedo (energy absorption — a kind of mini black hole), then this is the same VIRUS that no existing medicine can cope with, since these cells multiply at a huge speed without the control of the brain, which has lost the potential of high frequencies of the person himself. This VIRUS can be called by any "name", so in the future we will refer to it as "AIDS virus").

... homosexuality, which is blamed as the cause of the spread of AIDS, is inherent in human nature from the first days of human existence as a species of living nature. There is a lot of evidence about this, both in the chronicles and in the literature of all tribes and peoples, from the appearance of man on Earth to the present day ... The percentage of homosexuals was also not higher than it is now. It's just that there used to be significantly fewer people than there are now, and the share of homosexuals in digital translation has become very impressive in our time...

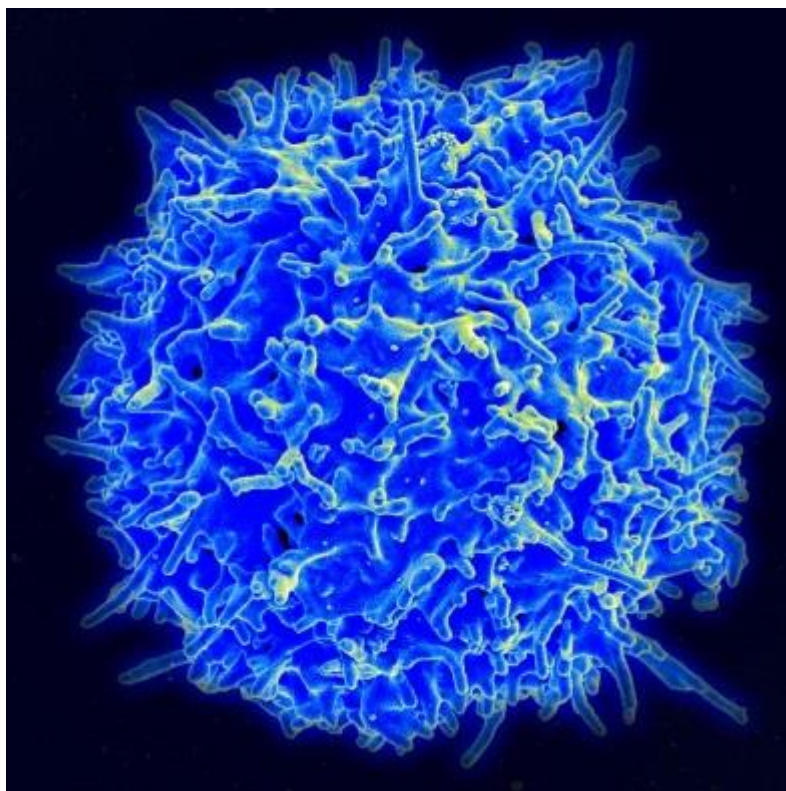

Рис. 109

As we have already discussed, the main reason for the boom of this disease is a decrease in the activity of the protective properties of the body to the level where the “AIDS virus” can agree with the body, and there are favorable conditions for its development. Let's take the normal level of activity of the immune system's protective psi field as ten conventional units (see Fig.109). We will assume that at a level equal to six conventional units, favorable conditions arise for the “AIDS virus” and its development in the human body.

Based on these assumptions, the possibility of introducing the AIDS virus into the human body occurs when the level of human immune activity becomes equal to six units.

(Immunity is an automatic system tuned to the frequency that is the base for the Program (the Program is introduced at Easter). The brain sets the upper and lower limits for the base, and the quantization limits for the remaining frequencies. Example: If the base frequency is 71.450450, and the limits are equal 148% and 12% of potential density (upper and lower, respectively), then the frequency that was used before entering the Program (67.450450) will have limits of 88% and 33% of potential density, and the overlapping frequency of 66% and 48%. If there is no base frequency, the Brain sets the removal of potentials from the electronic layers of tritium from the body's cells, which leads to dehydration of the cells. No drugs will not help here – (See: Breathe on SvetL).

The features of the AIDS virus are that it is “introduced” into the chromosomes of bone marrow cells. After that, these cells, as on a conveyor belt, themselves begin to synthesize more and more new virus RNA molecules, which create protective protein coatings in the same cells. After that, the “virus” gets through the blood into new areas of the bone marrow, where the same thing happens...

In this case, the "virus" destroys the T-lymphocytes of the human body. And after some time, the concentration of viral cells in the body reaches a value at which the body loses so many T-lymphocytes that the level of activity of the immune system drops to two arbitrary units (see Fig. 109). With this level of activity of the immune system, many infections already have favorable conditions for their development.

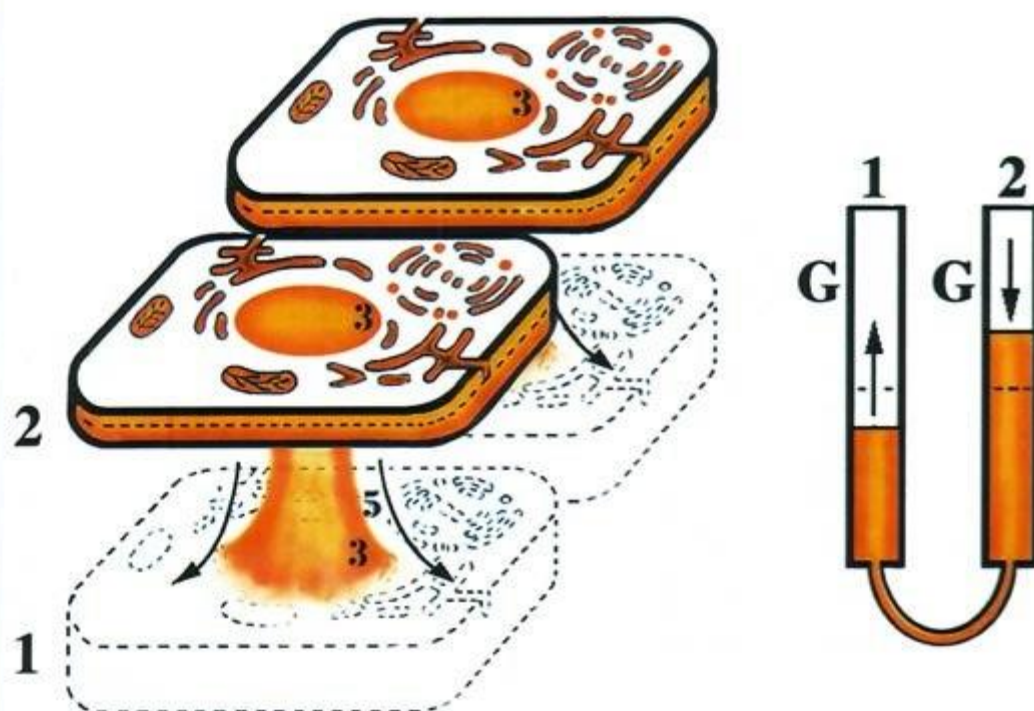

The human body is affected by many infections, and at the same time, the "AIDS virus", continuing to develop in the human body, gradually destroys all T-lymphocytes. The body becomes completely unprotected and quickly dies...

Recently, there have been cases when the number of T-lymphocytes in people decreased, as in AIDS, but the virus itself could not be detected in the blood of these people ... These cases have puzzled modern medicine. Where is the carrier of this disease?! ..

To understand this phenomenon, we must remember that in the course of evolution, many species of living organisms, including protozoa, were displaced from their ecological niches by more advanced organisms. Therefore, some viruses have lost their physically dense base - RNA molecules with protein shells. It's just that all these molecules were absorbed and broken down by other living organisms. But their etheric structures - their etheric bodies - have been preserved. Adapting to the conditions of life on the etheric plane of the planet, they were more dynamic than on the physical plane.

At the same time, the etheric bodies of extinct viruses are so dense that they can invade the structures of T-lymphocytes at their etheric level, destroying it, which in turn leads to the death of these T-lymphocytes. Here is the picture that surprised the doctors so much ... There is no virus in the blood, and the human body loses its T-lymphocytes, as in the presence of the "AIDS virus" in the blood (and after all, the body's cells turn into viral cells when their own potential and connection with the brain is lost - approx.).

Рис. 21а

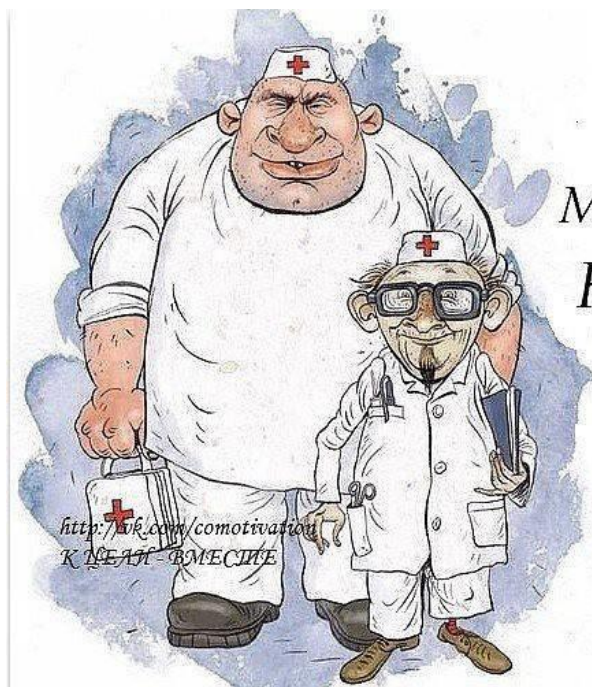

To implement this process, it is only necessary to create favorable conditions for the introduction of an extinct virus into the human etheric body. And this is possible when the protective shell of not only the physical body, but also the protective energy field of the entity is weakened."...

(In this case, the process of "incarnation" or projection of the etheric body of the virus into the biomass of the decayed cell occurs, and the assembly takes place on the finished matrix. When the decay of an old physical cell is complete, the organic molecules that make it up - that is, organic matter - the building material - remain to create new, already altered or viral cells, and the same happens with aging, when the brain's potentials are reduced, using up the released life potential - approx.).

After such explanations about the nature of the emergence of "viruses" in the human body, there is no need to run to the pharmacy, since no means can raise the potential of the human Brain, which is the main conductor of all cellular structures of the human body.

"In Russia, it is now the fashion to check immunity. And almost all of them have it close to zero. But the doctors immediately "comfort" those tested, telling them that they can be saved by immunomodulators that need to be injected for several weeks. For 20-30 thousand rubles (up to 1000 dollars),"Myasnikov continues in his article," in Western Europe and the United States, it has already been clearly proven and recognized that these drugs are ineffective, and most Russian doctors continue to believe in the power of immunomodulators."

*МИНЗДРАВ предупреждает:
Нет денег -
НЕ БОЛЕЙ!*

Myasnikov rejects all the arguments that someone gets sick in the epidemic (which means that their immunity has decreased), explaining that this is not a decrease in immunity, but a decrease in the effectiveness of the body's protective reactions. What is the difference?

Immunity is a state of the essence (Brain), i.e. the programmed process of formation and functioning of all cells, including symbiotic ones, regulating their number.

The protective reaction of the body is a state of the protective psi field, in which the development of other living microorganisms is not possible. It is possible to suppress the power of this field by "treatment" and other means of influencing the human Brain (essence).

As you can see – there is no fundamental difference, since it is the work of the Brain that determines everything!!! And the strength of the immune system depends on the degree of combining the frequency balance of living cells of the body ("shirt") and the Brain.

The only problem is that modern medicine does not know anything about the Brain, studying a living cell on dead tissue (outside the field of cell life support). But to create the appearance of caring for the population, pharmacists invent new names for diseases and chemical medicines.

What Dr. Myasnikov talks about is described in the article by Irakli Buziashvili. More details about Dr. Buziashvili can be found in the article Five Purely Russian Diseases. There, in particular, it is mentioned that vegetovascular dystonia, cervical erosion, dysbiosis, osteochondrosis and “salt deposition”, vitamin deficiency and immunodeficiency are diagnosed only in the countries of the former USSR.

"The diagnosis of VSD is very convenient and covers everything – rapid heartbeat, cold, wet hands, dizzy, stomach aches and much more – all dystonia! But there is no such disease as "vegetative-vascular dystonia"! These symptoms may indicate different disorders and the approach should be different, and not "VSD - will pass by itself", or "This is from your nerves", which necessarily need antidepressants. And the trade in these "essential" antidepressants is booming. Many doctors are directly or indirectly involved in this trade, earning a huge income, while in fact, treatment is not necessary at all!"- continues Dr. Myasnikov.

It is gratifying to see how experienced and honest servants of medicine are beginning to gradually discover secrets that have been under seal for quite a long time. After all, only a completely illiterate or dishonest person will continue to turn a blind eye to the inconsistencies between what is written in textbooks on the basis of pathoanatomic research and what is actually a person. Contradictions are becoming more obvious, information is more accessible and answers to the questions of people starting to think - it's time to give.

Let us explain to specialists: after receiving a blood test, you notice the presence of red blood cells (a disk with a diameter of 7 - 9 microns). But in humans, more than 90% of blood vessels have a diameter of 1 micron. In this case, the heart creates a pressure of 44 mm RT. pillar. Sufficiently respected luminaries of science report on the question posed (how does a red blood cell get and move in a blood vessel) that it simply stretches out (it does not want to change shape under a microscope).

Question: How is a red blood cell placed there?

Answer: there is no red blood cell in the blood; it is formed outside the Control System (or the Brain) as a sedimentary structure with the loss of an octave of its state (when the octave is reduced by 2 times, the total size increases by 1.284 times).

Similarly, the birth of a child. The sperm has an ionic structure and a brain of 96 octaves (smaller than the size of an atom). Once in the "sandbox", that is, in the structure in which the maximum scattering is produced, the sperm quickly grows (losing the octaves of the Brain). When the equilibrium state is reached (octave 71.225625), a signal is given, and childbirth is performed.

This leads to an important factor - the new Brain is fed in a higher octave, and the functions of the old Brain can only be partially disrupted.

Modern science does not even suspect the existence of a non-inertial mass (the structure of octaves is more than 64, united by 96 octaves), although ball lightning and its effect have been known for a long time. At octaves greater than 64, we have 8 different atomic structures.

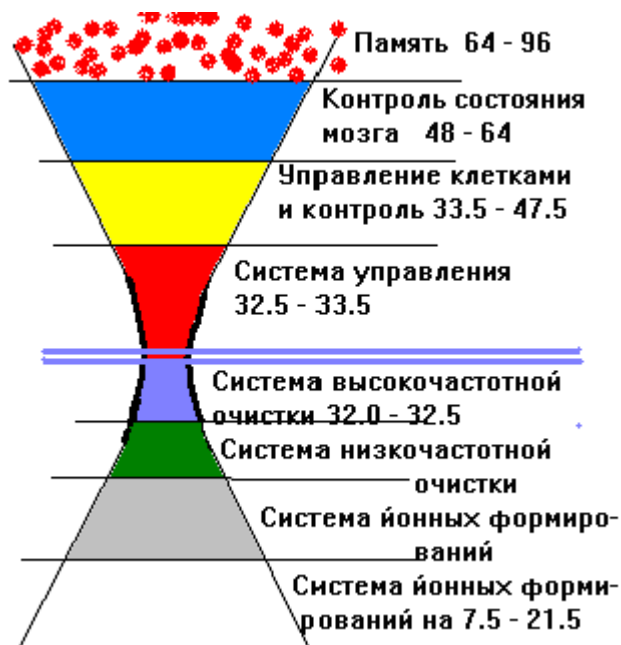

In 500 years of medicine, no one has paid attention to these little things. There are hundreds of similar examples, especially in the field of medicine. It is known that mathematics is used in medicine, but mostly statistical. And it's time to understand that any living organism can exist only in the information field, outside of the field, the organism consumes irrevocably the reserves of proton space potentials (one of the 8 types of atomic structures). The end of reserves leads to the separation of spaces, and the ionic structure turns into a normal inertial mass, into sand.

When a tissue sample is taken from a living organism for analysis, the microscope no longer sees the matter that was in the body under the influence of the Brain (the Essence – the individual information space). Therefore, the selection of the effects of a chemical substance is carried out when working with significantly modified matter, but then the effect of this substance on a living organism will be unpredictable and have many side effects, reducing the potential of both the Brain and living cells. At the end of this path is death.

All information about the structures and properties of living cells is contained in the Brain, not in DNA (some incomplete copies in DNA). In addition, the DNA itself is a kind of “conveyor” on which products are assembled.

The information is in the products, for example, after assembly, the car is filled with gasoline and it is ready to move, but no one will refuel the conveyor itself with gas, but biologists are persistently looking for the reason why the "conveyor" does not move, and do not pay attention to which components arrive for assembly. They cannot be seen by any modern technical means.

Let's imagine the following diagram:

The antineutron space forms lymph, around which the proton ion space is formed by reducing the potentials of the initial frequencies. This proton space is endowed with the properties of its own control and perception of the environment, that is, the perception of space-time. However, this is the lowest level of perception. It is accepted as a standard by medical science.

All modern medicine works in proton space. There are no ways to move or control from a lower space to another space, when trying to change the state of a living cell, the control system is simply disconnected from the Brain (Entity), and the living cell exists only as long as the potential of the magnetic pulse of the cell itself is consumed.

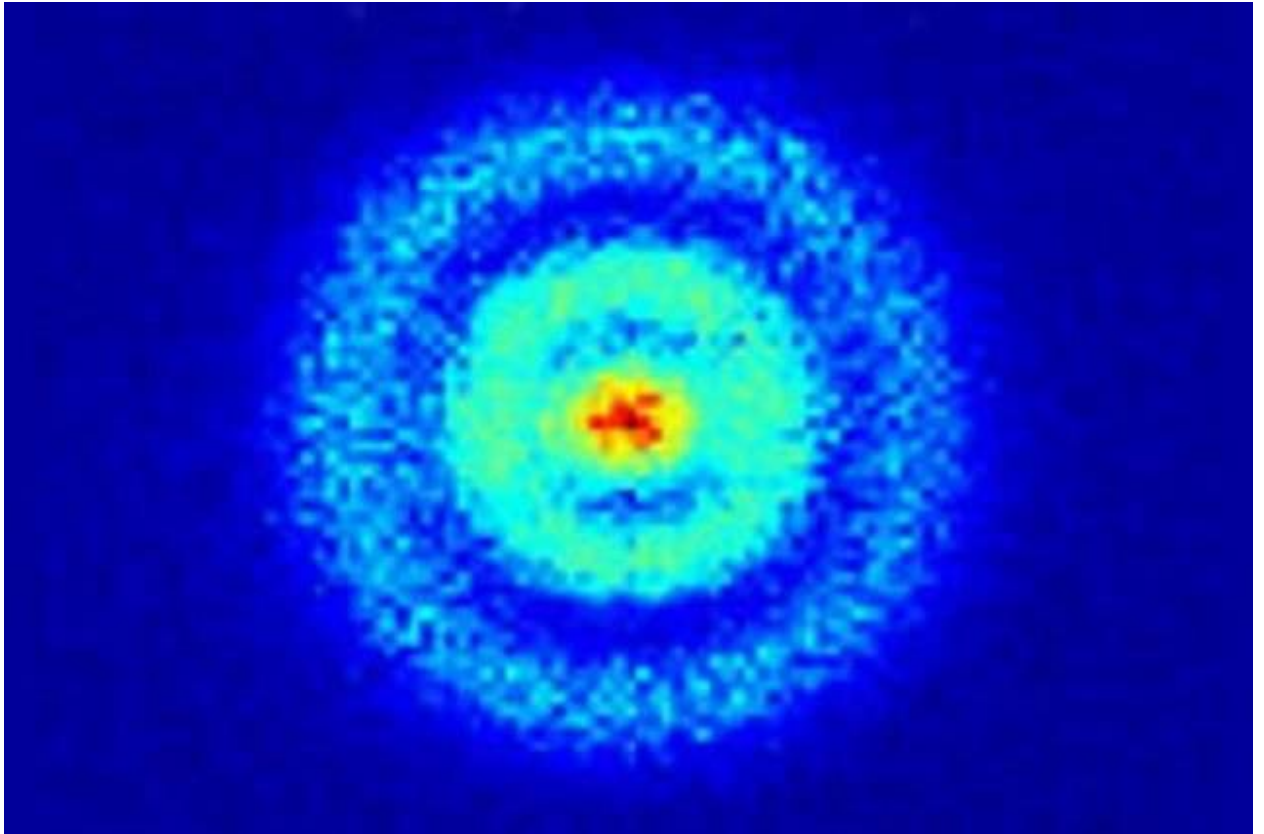

This means that the Brain and its information space form a healthy or pathological state of a person. Therefore, no immunomodulators or tablets, no surgical devices can improve your health.

If this Knowledge is applied as the basis of a New Science in health improvement, then doctors of the near future should also be physicists, and physicists should receive a full medical education. Then science will be able to HEAL, and not to destroy living people in favor of those who rule the world through money!

Man is the greatest mystery of Life and a very subtle instrument, just like life itself! Attempts to unravel this mystery began at the same time as a person realized himself by "biting the Apple of knowledge", and continue to this day. After the appearance of microscopes and telescopes, it became clear that man, as an intermediate link in the micro - and macro-world, is a subjective object that is affected by all changes in electromagnetic waves. The electromagnetic (field) component of the DNA molecule is able to transmit information about the construction of a cell and start the process of creating a new one.

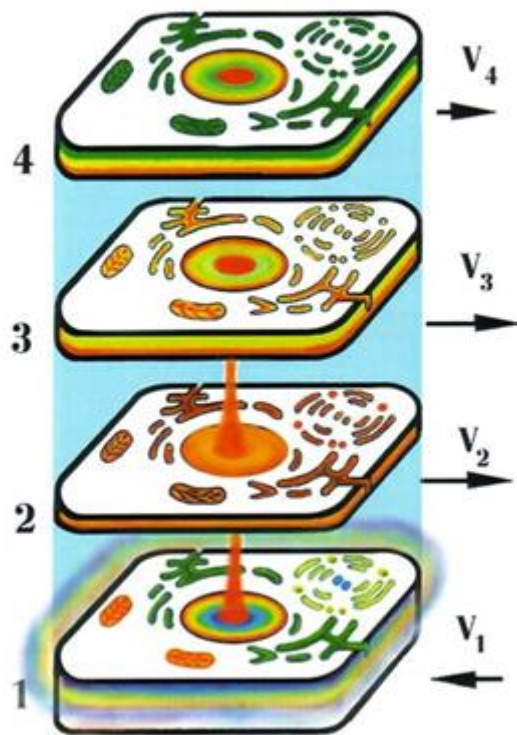

Any DNA molecule creates a spatial deformation, which is a weak electromagnetic field that can project the structure of DNA in water, and therefore in cells. In this case, the fingerprint is stable and amplified due to the influence of quantum coherence. In the process of polymerase chain reaction, enzymes perceive (so to speak) this DNA fingerprint in the water environment as a real DNA molecule, creating a copy of the template of the one that sent the electromagnetic fingerprint. This confirms the electromagnetic (field) nature of physical matter, as well as its dependence on passing electromagnetic waves of any quality (frequency range), both on the scale of the Universe and at the level of the atoms that make up the cells of the body. Any distortion of INFORMATION during transmission leads to the transformation of DNA and a living cell.

The physical model of the atom resembles the structure of the Solar System. Both contain "visible" matter (the nucleus and electrons), which is negligible compared to the volume of the "invisible", which modern science calls "Dark matter" and "Dark energy". This substance does not produce electromagnetic radiation that could interact with high-precision research instruments. As a result, modern devices are able to conduct only indirect observation of "Dark matter", the impact of which on wildlife, science has not yet learned to take into account either in medicine, agriculture, or in the development of natural resources of the planet. All attempts to restore a person to health, affecting only the physically dense component of the body's matter, neither with the help of medicines, tablets and radiation, nor with surgical intervention and preventive vaccination, do not lead to positive results. Rather, on the contrary, with the help of chemistry and a scalpel, a person is irreparably harmed by the violation of the integrity of an organically created system of cells and the Brain.

The human body is a single energy-information system consisting of several material bodies that permeate each other, having a different frequency range, which should not go beyond the stability of the ratios of the so-called primary matter. The reaction time in the space of a living cell depends on this. The human physical body is a multicellular organism whose cells constantly follow the program set by the matrix of life - the essence or soul. The circulation of primary matter through channels between all levels of the system of bodies is life itself. This can be compared to communicating vessels, when the system strives to maintain balance. For Life to continue, the loss of energy must be constantly replenished. That is, Life is a constant INTERACTION of HARMONIES!

If negative changes occur at the level of the essence (soul), then the physical body is forced to restore energy reserves from the environment, receiving energy of the appropriate quality. If the destructive effect is on the physical body, then the supporting flows from the entity are exhausted, as there is a qualitative discrepancy in the frequency balance. In this case, diseases occur, and life is extinguished as a result of a drop in the supporting potential.

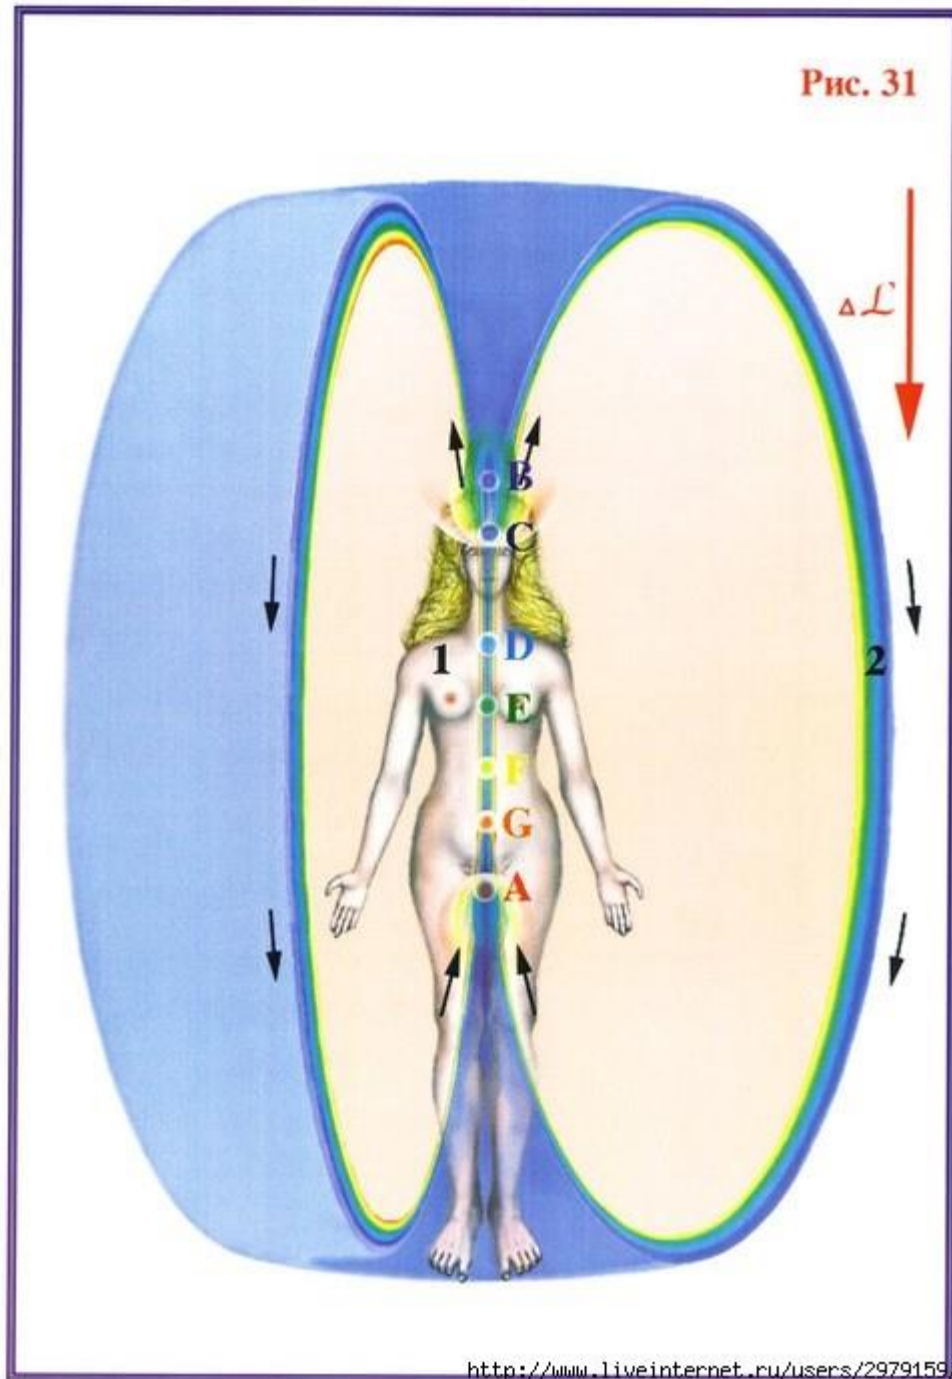

Violation of the interaction of HARMONICS, for example, atmospheric phenomena - rain, snow, wind, drought entail unexpected distortions of the electric potentials of gravitational frequencies and the potentials of magnetic pulses, causing involuntary changes in the cell temperature and sliding angle.

External stimuli - radiation, the action of chemical stimuli, the background effect of the form (for example, the place of residence) lead to frequency tuning and, as a result, distortion of the electrical potentials of a living cell. There are limits to the existence of both gravitational potentials and electric potentials. When going beyond these limits, information exchange is distorted.

With aging - as a result of morphological changes in the cells of the body, there is a misalignment of the bodies of the essence and the physical body of the person. The essence (soul) is ejected from the physical body.

The physical body is a necessary condition for the transformation of matter, which comes in the form of food that serves as a building material, both for cells and for saturation of the control matrix of an ENTITY that allows it to keep the balance of life-support of the whole structure. In fact, the essence (soul) is a crystal-Converter of matter flows, which are defined by physicists as "Dark Matter", and is not registered by devices. Devices can only track the spatial deformation caused by the presence of this structure and changes occurring at the level of electromagnetic waves emitted by the human body. This is so to speak, indirect manifestations of the body's vital activity. According to these manifestations, you can fix the place of pathology, but correcting these consequences can not eliminate the cause of their appearance. The reason is the morphological changes in the cell due to the already mentioned reasons. No medical product, no organ replacement, no self-hypnosis, or pumping someone else's energy will not rectify the situation.

The essence or soul of a person depends entirely on changes in the biosphere under the influence of INFORMATION flows of "Dark Matter" and cosmic radiation. If a person is in balance with the essence, then all the organs and systems of the physical body work smoothly, under the control signals of the Brain and the protection of the individual psi field. As soon as there is a failure due to stress and a disproportionate distribution of energy potential, problems immediately begin in the life of cells: toxins and slags accumulate, new molecular compounds arise, and the cell changes morphologically, breaking out of the general rhythm of the organ or system... So there is a disease that gradually turns into oncology.

What is CANCER? Today's science cannot answer this question INTELLIGIBLY. Cancer is a condition of a cell in the absence of communication with the Brain.

The changed structure of a living cell forms an additional intermediate environment for the existence of a colony of new cells that are resistant to external influences. This internal environment has the ability to change the charge equivalent of a living cell due to radiation both in the direction of its increase, provoking the Brain to reduce the electrical potential, and in the direction of decrease, giving out information about the additional "recharge" of a living cell.

This feed is used by the new colony for its own life support. All drugs whose action is based on the suppression of the electrical potential of colonies of foreign cells provoke the Brain to increase the supply of electrical potential to living cells, and this potential is distributed in the colony itself. Any impact - from chemotherapy to laser "burning" leads to an increase in potentials for a living cell (manifested in an increase in temperature, a decrease in reaction time - and therefore the life of the cell).

The changed conditions of the neutron space also lead to changes in the functioning of the Brain according to the reference parameters. The right and left helical structures of the DNA of a living cell can no longer be distinguished at the limit values of the electric potential and are perceived by the Brain as a normal living cell. But this means that each cell receives and has its own control structure. Thus, the Brain also receives a virus, that is, a structure that is inharmonious relative to the normal communication matrix, as the highest state of charge equivalent structures, while relying on lower organizations (biostructures - viruses) has a certain corridor of direct control of the living cell of the biostructure - a Person!

The appearance of the virus leads to a decrease in the initial charge equivalent without changing the reference values, that is, parameters such as the sliding angle and humidity already falling in the Brain. When certain limits are reached, the Brain can no longer control, and will strive to free itself from any cell - living or from the colony, but this does not correct its condition, since viruses, reducing the charge equivalent of the Brain, lead to its destruction. In contrast to a colony, where cells already have a single structure and electrical potential, living cells remain an autonomous formation in this environment and are quickly transmuted, transforming into new structures.

To eliminate changes in the charge equivalent and restore the qualitative harmony of new structures, it is necessary to return the cell to its original healthy state by matching its potential with the overall energy potential of the matrix - the restored octave of the Brain. To do this, the cell needs to add the necessary potential to the address, at which it will be updated – in its place; an absolutely new cell of a higher quality level will be formed...

Thanks to the courage and spirit of creativity of the Russian Scientist Nikolai Levashov, and not only him, it was possible to make a reality of breakthrough technologies that allow you to restore human health completely, through "special devices" - carriers of "Dark Matter" generators.

The SvetL technology is a technology of compensating effects on additional material bodies of a Human being, on the completeness and stability of which the emotional and physical balance of the whole organism depends.

On the main "carrier plate" is "installed" a Generator with an appropriate Program, a kind of quasi-living organism that interacts with the Essence of man and adjusts the necessary parameters by redistributing the flows of "Dark Matter" (energy), which was described above. This structure has a set level of consciousness, similar to the reticular formation of the Brain, corrects, transforms and regulates the circulation of primary matter between all levels of cells, adjusting the frequency balance in accordance with their functional purpose at a new qualitative level of the Brain, which corresponds to a healthy human condition. After some time, these changes begin to manifest themselves at the physically dense cellular level of organs and systems in the form of their recovery and rejuvenation.

This is the way out of the situation in which Humanity has driven itself, being in the web of a system of false representations! And YOU and I are going to implement and develop the Technologies of Life, not Finance the factories of death.
